

Alisa Roberta Gukasian (she/her) is a classical violinist and educator based in Southern California. She is currently pursuing her graduate diploma in Violin Performance at the UCLA Herb Alpert School of Music, studying with Professors Varty Manouelian and Movses Pogossian.

She earned two undergraduate degrees—a Bachelor of Arts in History and a Bachelor of Music in Orchestral Strings—from California State University, Northridge (CSUN), where she also served as Assistant Concertmaster of the CSUN Symphony Orchestra. As the school's first Whitsett Smithsonian Fellow, she lived and worked in Washington, D.C., developing a violin-focused exhibit on pedagogy, immigrant musicians, and accessibility in music education.

Alisa is an AMP Fellow with UCLA's Armenian Music Program, where she studies the kamancha and participates in outreach at schools like Hoover Street Elementary. She is dedicated to inclusive, culturally rooted music education that empowers students and builds community through performance and connection.
